What I liked best about the workshop/the software:

Good way to share material

What I think could be improved:

Some things weren't obvious e.g. abbreviations for language. I also lost my material twice because I didn't enter language code + when I went back, my material was gone + I had to start again.

What I liked best about the workshop/the software:

Clilstore is easy to use and pretty practicable software/see that I can use for my Japanese students.

What I think could be improved:

In addition to creating the film & text size, I wanted to learn more about how to create exercises online & link them. I personally learned it from Caoimhin! Thanks.

What I liked best about the workshop/the software:

The fact that you can check every single word which is included in the text by just clicking on it is something extraordinary and I think that I consider as really useful for students, they would not need extra-motivation to check all the words they don't know.

What I think could be improved:

Making sure that the browser language ~~the~~ interface could be changed..

What I liked best about the workshop/the software:

The potentiality of CLILSTORE: amplification! it is an excellent project

What I think could be improved:

- the workshop was ok ; in CLILSTORE I think more attention should be placed on quality criteria of CLIL units created by teachers; work on grouping criteria to order units on the basis of their topics

"use" = try at home. →

What I liked best about the workshop/the software:
 hands on, it worked, easy registration. This fundamental worked - it very often does not.

What I think could be improved:
 I would have liked much more on the underlying programming code. We attending this are not end users.
